Cadets of High School on White Lot.

ATTACKING FORCE WON

PRETTY EXHIBITION WITNESSED BY THOUSANDS.

Annual Review Passes Off Nicely-Parade Ground Thronged With Students' Well-Wishers.

Three companies of the High School Cadet Regiment were assigned to hold a position against seven companies yesterday afternoon on the ellipse of the White Lot, and, in the opinion of the judges, Major Chas. Ourand, inspector general of the National Guard of the District of Columbia, and Capt. Hutchinson of the 6th United States Cavalry, the seven companies were victorious, completely outflanking the "enemy" by annihilating his right flank and doubling up his whole line.

Lieut. Gen. Adna R. Chaffee, U. S. A., was present with members of the general staff to inspect the regiment and watch the mimic battle.

The companies comprising the attacking party were A and B of Central, D and K of H of Western, and they were under the cluding school girls and boys by the hundreds, their relatives and friends and countless others who were interested in seeing how the boys could play war. Members of the board of education and their friends, school officials and teachers, and numerous other invited guests occupied the chairs inside of the line of rope which had been drawn around the northern half of the ellipse.

Both before and after the maneuvers on the White Lot the regiment had short parades through the streets. It marched to the grounds, with the Marine Band at its head, from the corner of 14th street and New York avenue by way of Pennsylvania avenue and 17th street, and left the scene of the battle by the eastern entrance to the White Lot, passed the Treasury building and marched south on Pennsylvania avenue to 11th street, where it disbanded.

Spectators Gathered in Force.

Spectators began to gather round the elpse long before the time for the exercises, which was 4 o'clock. The crowd was so arge and so anxious to secure a good position from which to see that the large force of police detailed by Major Sylvester to keep the grounds clear had much difficulty in keeping people behind the ropes. Little boys, always full of the love of guns and of playing war, were especially in evidence, and once during the afternoon's exhibition created much amusement by simultaneously breaking forth all around the semi-circle and rushing in a herd to the center of the field to pick up blank cartridges. By the time the police had gotten to them and were ordering them back the air was full of the sound of whistling such as is made by blowing on the ends of many empty cartridges.

Several hundred invited guests were seated inside the lines when the maneuvers commenced. These included Lieutenant General Chaffee, the judges, Col. Burton R. Ross, the military instructor of the high schools, who taught the young soldiers how to carry on the afternoon's maneuvers; Senor Antonio Martin Rivero, first secre-tary of the Cuban legation; Commissioners Macfarland, West and Biddle, Maj. William D. Beach of the general army staff, Maj. G. F. E. Harrisdn of the United States ar-tillery, Maj. M. Emmet Urell and Lieutenant Brummet of the District National Guard, Messrs. Fitch and Gordon of the board of education, Percy M. Hughes, director of high schools, and A. T. Stuart, director of schools

In Column of Companies.

The regiment marched on to the field about a p.m. in column of companies. While they were maneuvering for position in line of companies and the Marine Band, under the command of Lieut. Santelmann, was playing inspiring martial music, the students present took occasion to cheer their favorite companies and the air fairly rung with shouts and slogans.

Each company was commanded by its egular captain as follows: Capt. C. R. Cox of Company A and Capt. E. L. Kelly of Comof Company A and Capt. E. L. Kelly of Company B, both from Central; Capt. R. N. Conwell of Company C and Capt. C. L. Turner of Company D. of Technical; Capt. E. W. Bend of Company E, of Business, Capt. W. D. Tewksbury of Company F, of Eastern; Capt. T. P. Keep of Company G, of Business; Capt. E. H. Cumpston of Company H of Western; Capt. F. Raymond French of Company I, of Central; Capt. C. H. Butman of Company K, of Business. The battalions were under the the command of battalions were under the the command of Majors W. C. Van Vleck, H. E. Simons and J. R. Hall.

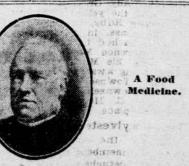

J. R. Hall.

The other officers were Col. G. H. Huddleson, Lieut. Col. J. L. Schultze, Adjt. E. A. Hoge and Quartermaster F. E. Hand.

On the colonel's staff besides the regular officers of the regiment were former Col. R. D. S. Brown, former Maj. W. A. Kemper and former Capts. Orton and Daniels.

The Regiment Inspected.

When the position in line of companies had been obtained the order was given for "open ranks" and "parade rest," while Lieut. Gen. Chaffee and Col. Huddleson together with Maj. Beach and Lieut Col. Schultz, walked slowly around the entire command and inspected every part of the accouterment. Following the inspection the regiment, headed by the Marine Band, pass-ed in review before Gen. Chaffee and the other members of the reviewing party. This over, the sham battle was prepared for. The companies of the defense took up their position and lay down on their arms, while the attacking party disappeared among the trees in the vicinity of the Washington monument grounds. Lieut, Schultze, with the assistance of Maj. Van Vleck, spread his men out so as to have them cover the entire approach to their position. Having established a base, he sent out Company G, under command of Capt. Heep, as a scouting party, and soon the sound of straggling shots here and there among the trees told that the conflict was on.

Gradually the attacking force drove back the small scouting party, until the latter emerged from the trees and made the best of its way across the grassy open to the shelter of the other two companies lying in walt.

Kept Up Desultory Fire.

Kept Up Desultory Fire. The men of the attacking party who first appeared on the southern edge of the ellipse were scouts sent ahead by Col. Huddleson. These kept up a desultory fire for some time until the main body reached them, and then the volume of sound increased tremendously Attempts were made by Majs. Simons and Hall, at Col. Huddleson's order, to turn the flank of the defense, which by this time was pouring a steady fire in the direction from which the sounds of the "enemy's" shots came. Each time such an attempt was made Lieut. Col. Schultze ordered his men to change position to meet it, and for a few minutes the result hung in the balance. Finally Col. Huddleson's left succeeded in getting very near the right flank of the defense unbbserved, and the latter found it necessary to answer the hardest firing of the day.

Both sides did their best, but it was here, said the judges, that a company of the defense was annihilated, giving the attacking party the opportunity to double up the rest of the defending party's line. At the sound of the bugle a few seconds later the entire force of the attack burst forth from the "woods," and the men charged uproariously correct the serve in the few of the serve in the second of the second and then the volume of sound increased the "woods," and the men charged uproar-iously across the open in the face of their foes, who rose like men to meet them—and

It advanced from a position behind the Washington monument and charged upon the three companies of the defense stationed on the northern side of the ellipse. The defense consisted of C of Technical, G of Business and I of Central, and was under the command of Lieut. Col. Schultze, and although it did good work, it failed to withstand the onslaught of the large invading force; that is, so the judges said.

The sham battle and the inspection and review of the regiment, which preceded it, and the dress parade, which followed, were witnessed by several thausand persons, including school girls and boys by the hundreds, their relatives and friends and countand at the drill yesterday those interested in forecasting results were busy comparing the merits of the ten companies. All companies acquitted themselves very well.

It was expected up to the last moment that Gatling guns would be used by the cadets during the sham battle, as had been the case in former years, but some hitch arose, and they were not secured from the National Guard Field Battery, which had loaned them before.

The racket made by the small arms was very great, and, as no important movements depended on the presence of the large guns, the regiment made a good showing without them. Col. Seventh Annual Convention Held in Mt. Vernon Place Church.

The seventh annual convention of the Epworth League Union of Washington city was held in the Mount Vernon Place Methodist Protestant Church yesterday afternoon and evening. Nearly every one of the twenty-two leagues in the union was represented, delegates being present from the most distant points, such as Manassas, Gaithersburg, Beltsville, Savage, Lee Chapel and Rockville.

President Lamar read his annual report, which was followed by reports of First Vice President Pollard, Second Vice President Crawford, Third Vice President Trent, Superintendent Garrett, in charge of junior leagues, and Secretary Bell.

The following officers were elected: President, Mr. E. F. Brown of Marvin Chapter; first vice president, Mr. F. J. Pollard of Alexandria, Va.; second vice president, Mrs. F. W. Tucker of Epworth Chapter; third vice president Mrs. Prest of Mount vice president, Miss Dera Trent of Mount Vernon Place; junior league superintendent, Mrs. A. M. Fetzer of Manassas, Va.; secretary, Dr. T. D. Bell of Mount Vernon Place Chapter; treasurer, Mrs. George E.

Warfield of Alexandria, Va. The devotional exercises were conducted in the evening by Rev. R. P. Jeffries, who has recently been assigned to this city to take charge of the new church to be established in North Washington. Among those who spoke during the evening were George H. Lamar and Rev. W. B. Beauchamp. The new officers were installed at this meeting, Rev. F. J. Prettyman delivering the installation address.

DEATH OF MR. GORMAN.

Attache of Department of Justice Succumbs to Disease.

Mr. George Hines Gorman, an attache of the Department of Justice, died at his apartments in the Franconia, 918 18th street, at an early hour yesterday. He had been ill for about ten days with grip, which developed into pneumonia.

Mr. Gorman was born in North Carolina July 29, 1861, and was educated at Washington and Lee University, Va. Soon after graduating he became assistant corporation counsel in Norfolk, Va., continuing in that office for two years. He first practiced law in St. Paul, Minn., leaving that city to go farther west, to Pocatello, Idaho, after two years. Later he began to practice law in Portland, Ore., but coming to Washington to prepare himself to write a book on the law, was appointed under the Cleveland administration as an attorney in the office of the Attorney General. He held this position for a time under the McKinley administration, and then became a special attorney for the government in the dry dock cases. He was married about three years ago. The funeral will take place from St. Thomas' Episcopal Church on Monday at 11 o'clock, Rev. C. Ernest Smith having charge of the service. The pallbearers will be Assistant Attorney General Louis Pradt, Mr. John S. Blair, Mr. Benjamin Micou and Messrs. Collins, Ashford and Trayner of the Department of Justice. The interment will be in Rock Creek cemetery. Besides his wife, Mr. Gorman is survived by two brothers, Mr. Alexander M. Gor-man of this city and Mr. Maxwell J. Gorman of Raleigh, N. C.
